Activities at the Carmel Valley Library

by Doug Pease

Librarian Gail Knoles is enjoying some sabbatical time until December and Susan Siegel is filling in until Gail returns. Friends of the Library have arranged for Martha Whitehorn to build a custom computer desk to house the 486 computer acquired this spring, with room for all components including a CD ROM "tower" which holds six disks. One of the disks will be a Magazine Access Summary subscription (MAS), to help researchers of all ages expand a bibliography or track down an elusive periodical article. The next step for the computer is to arrange access onto the Internet, but first the library needs a committee of interested persons to guide patrons through the process. Kathy Nielsen already knows how to navigate the Internet as a result of training sessions at the Seaside Library. Neta Cobb volunteered to join the committee, and anyone else who would like to become proficient and then help other patrons can contact Price Dunn at 659-9621.

Magician and story teller Gabrielle Lisky will visit the library at 11 a.m. on Friday, July 28 for a session of very special stories.

Jean Wideman, from the Big Sur branch, will lead songs for kids and adults during the End of Summer Reading Party, noon on Thursday, August 3. Come for the music, the hot dogs and the watermelon.

There will be two composting demonstrations at the library on Saturday, August 12: one at 10 a.m. and the other at noon. Call Sandy Ainsworth at 659-2377 for further details or stop by and check it out. There's a chance composting bins will be available at a reasonable price after each demonstration.

You'd never guess but this is Randy Randazzo "clowning it up" at last year's Clown Parade. The annual Fiesta sponsored by the Carmel Valley Kiwanis Club also features a Clown Parade. This year it will be held on Sunday, August 6. Randy tells us he needs more "Clowns". No experience needed. Prizes will be awarded in various age categories. If you need face make-up, wigs, etc. call Randy at 659-2472. All ages can join in the fun. Call Randy!

Fiesta Days is offering a much better parking plan

The Carmel Valley Fiesta Committee is taking steps to reduce parking problems. The Carmel Valley airport will be used to stage a parade. Parking will be available on Ford Road across from the Community Center, and in the parking lot of the Hidden Valley Music Seminars and Institute of the Arts on Carmel Valley Road just east of Ford Road.

In addition, virtually all of the streets near and adjacent to downtown Village area will be available for parking, except certain restricted areas.

In order to reach the airport parking, take Ford road off Carmel Valley Road to Lilac Road which leads to the Airport area.

Del Fino Place in the Village will be posted and closed to traffic and parking to prepare for the street dance. No parking will be permitted on Del Fino Place west of the Plaza Linda building to Pilot Road on Saturday, August 5, 1995.

Water District Monthly Report

By Elizabeth Cowley

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District (MPWMD) Board of Directors held its monthly meeting on Monday, July 17 at the Monterey City Council Chambers.

Bill Hurst, MPWMD interim General Manager, reported that water consumption within the district, even with growth, is more than 20% less than in 1988. A ceremonial signing of the Federal 404 permit for the proposed New Los Padres Dam (NLPD) was held on July 7, 1995. On June 22, 1995 the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB) issued a draft water rights permit for the 24,000 acre foot proposed NLPD. On August 7, 1995 the MPWMD will finalize the ballot measure to authorize the bond issue to finance the over $110 million proposed NLPD which will come before the voters on November 7, 1995.

David Laredo, MPWMD council, presented a brief update regarding the June 22, 1995 SWRCB decisions granting a water rights permit for the 24,000 acre foot proposed NLPD and ruling on 4 complaints against Cal-Am's Carmel River diversions. The SWRCB ruled that 10,730 acre feet of water Cal-Am currently diverts annually from the Carmel River falls under SWRCB jurisdiction. The SWRCB is requiring a 20% cutback over the next 2 years in Cal-Am's overall production which is to be deducted from Carmel River diversions. Mr. Laredo said that the MPWMD has until August 5, 1995 to request a reconsideration of, or amendments to, the SWRCB decision. At this time the MPWMD is uncertain whether and on what grounds it may appeal. MPWMD staff will be meeting with SWRCB staff in Sacramento to clarify technical issues.

Director Pentergrass said that several millions have already been spent on litigating this issue (Cal-Am's right to divert Carmel River water) and that he has received feedback indicating that the public feels it is being "blackmailed" into approving the proposed NLPD and that they do not understand the SWRCB ruling. Mr. Laredo remarked that it is a complex issue but that while the SWRCB is requiring a 20% cutback Shoes. Horseshoes and dancing shoes. All part of the fundraising events held this last weekend in Carmel Valley.

The 1st Annual Little League Horseshoes Tournament provided participants with lively family fun. While the sound of clanging metal rang from the playing field, children played tag and hopped aboard the miniature mobile Kiwanis' train for a ride.

Among the 64 shoe pitchers were Rick Smith, Neil, Gene and Rusty Vandervort, Tom Sheperd, John Saunders, Mike Thatcher, Bruce Crane, Steve Mackey, Arron Armstrong, the Ringer family, Mo Moulaison, the Christensens, Chad Casey and Brian.

Tom and Pete Gaudion won the competition playing against Tim Dames and Rick Thompson. Dames won the 24 shoe toss contest with 11 ringers.

Family and friends cheered or groaned as the 32 team double elimination progressed. The consensus: lots of fun and anticipation of next year's tournament. The $1500 raised will be used to set up another much needed playing field for Carmel Valley's expanding Little League program.

The street dance and barbeque held at the Mid Valley Shopping Center will benefited more than the fire department, according to Ernesto Valdez, President of the Mid Valley Fire Fighters Volunteers. According to Valdez, a portion of the funds raised will go to aid Carmel Valley flood survivors while a portion will be used for fire fighting training and equipment.

Mike Vout chaired the event assisted by the department's 35 volunteers. Fire Chief, Gary Carmichael, proudly welcomed more than 1500 guests throughout the evening.

The children were the first to put on their dancing shoes while parents sat on bales of hay finishing their meal. Linda Sellars and Lee Carmichael took tickets. Among those enjoying the Greg Morrison Band were Nancy Serrano of Mid Valley Florist, Bill Brown, coach John Madden, Gary Paddock and Stacie Crane.

On 7-19, members of the Sheriff's Search and Rescue Team, along with the members of the Marine detachment, flew into the area by helicopter and conducted a search for more skeletal remains. More bones were found. The skeletal remains will be examined by an anthropologist to determine sex, race, age and possibly length of time since death.

FUN IN THE SUN

Dave Lyon

The summer continues to fly at us from all directions here in Paradise Valley, with more great events and things to do than we could all shake a salmon at. Yes, the fish are jumping and so are the good times, so everyone sit back and keep on enjoying the ride.

Check it out folks...this Saturday, the 29th of July, the Community Center sponsored Giant Flea Market returns for the third year to the parking lot at Carmel Middle School. Come and wander around the many booths filled with garage goodies, attic attractions, and basement bargains...plus...craft booths, face painting, and food for everyone.

Come early for the best buys. The sale opens at 8 a.m. and goes until 4 in the afternoon. Your one-dollar parking donation (enforced by behavior modification dogs Zack & Molly Lyon) goes to support the Carmel Valley Community Center. Come see what your friends and neighbors are trying to get rid of, like...maybe something they borrowed from you last fall...

Booth space is still available for all of you last minute pack-rats out there wanting to sell those treasures. Contact the CVCYC at 659-3983 and reserve your space no later than Friday, 5 p.m. A 12 x 12 space is just $25, and all the advertising is taken care of. As a special treat, Mr. Golf Ball will return for the third year...

Special Kudos to Stephanie Waldrup and the most excellent Community Center Performing Arts Players, for their recent outstanding production of Alice in Wonderland, presented earlier this month at Hidden Valley Music Seminars. The audience was treated to a wonderful home town performance by the best of our young actors and actresses, and a great time was enjoyed by all.

The next Community Center sponsored Performing Arts Workshop for Valley kids will be starting this fall, and will culminate with the presentation of a Christmas play in December. For complete details on this very special program contact the CVCYC during regular business hours.

Hellzapoppin' at the Community Pool. The sun is hot, the drinks are not, and the cool waves just keep on coming. (Dudes - check out those radical new sweatshirts...) Still time to get plenty of value from a family or individual season swim pass. Or.. a twenty or fifty swim punch card could be just the recreational value you've been looking for.

for total details on all the happening stuff going on down at the pool. From swim lessons for the kids, to dive classes, scuba classes and water polo classes, to adult lap swim and family recreational swim, your pool has something for everyone. (Hey, like, including a rapidly expanding pile of lost? and found clothes, suits, towels, goggles, fins and you name it, all waiting to be claimed.) Coach Di sez: All items left at the pool over two weeks will be donated to Goodwill or used to clean salmon.

Too good to be true. The most excellent Carmel Valley Fiesta returns to a small town near you next weekend. The outstanding times kick-off next Friday, the 4th of August with the HOOPLA! Pit-roasted wild boar dinner at the Trail & Saddle Club. The fun

TOUCHING BASES

Peter Lyon

They are ALL stars...Post-season baseball, like the long days of summer, usually arrives almost unnoticed in Carmel Valley midst the graduations, the pool opening and the summer plans. Yet this year, which erupted a glorious summer from a grumpy spring, also swept dozens of young folks and their families into the flood of play-off games in a venue stretching from Soledad to Santa Clara. Some sort of Iron Law of Transport seemed to dictate that the older the player, the farther the parents traveled to love and support their kids, yell themselves hoarse, eat dust and over priced hot dogs, and rise again the next morning to set off for a ballpark far less lovely than our own CVLL scenic splendors.

Stars to light our skies...so many teams played after the regular season ended that it will take at least two columns to celebrate their achievements. However, we'd like to begin with the team which brought great honor to Carmel Valley Little League this year, the 11-12 All Stars. Had you peered into the dugout you would have found Kyle Glanville, Brice Matson, Patrick Thomas, Brandon Ocampo, Tim Covington, Ben de Grazia, Isaac Siegel, Andreas Baer, Nathan Ricigliano, Matt Hale, Chris Cope, Harry Heneks, Zack Newhouse, and Chris Rankin. To control such talent requires a firm hand, so you would have also found two fuzzy faces and a trim moustache: Glen Nolte, pitching coach Tom Ocampo, and crafty David Stainbrook each wearing the coaches' colors. And the results of combining kid power with adult wisdom?

The best in over twenty years. You may have noticed that this column has assiduously avoided mentioning scores, since we believe that baseball here in paradise is its own reward. However, we are delighted to report on the statistics amassed by our teams once they leave the sanctuary of the CVLL to engage teams from a less fortunate geographical area. So rather like the stereotypical Western saga, the 11 and 12 year old Boys from Benny Gulch swaggered out of the Valley, squinty-eyed and confident, and promptly lost to Soledad 8-3 in spite of great efforts by Isaac Siegel and Kyle Glanville. But do our heroes fold? Do they toss in the chips after one bad hand? Well, almost. When they came up against the cowpokes from King City, our boys directly let themselves be dusted for seven runs in the first inning, yet clambered back into the saddle and tore up the town with a three run homer from Brice Matson to chase them South County boys into retirement, 10-8. Then it was on to North County where Patrick Thomas threw a two hit, 11 strike-out fusillade to win 9-1 with a three hit effort from Chris Cope.

Fastest guns, and biggest...The next dust-up was a 13-8 shootout against Toro Park, where Brice smashed a three run homer, Patrick Thomas got a round tripper, Kyle got a double, Matt Hale also smacked a double as did Chris Cope. Then came a pitcher's mano a mano which Patrick Thomas won, 3-1 against Continental of Salinas with 10 strike-outs to his credit. It was in that game that Nathan Ricigliano staged the ultimate diving, back handed catch of a line drive to save the day, a moment of exquisite ballet.

Then the lightning struck...On an afternoon reminiscent of thunderstorms in the Sangre de Christos, Matt Hale went up against the Boys from Greenfield. Patrick Thomas and Brice

Matson hit back to back home runs, the lightning flashed, the rains descended and the floods came, and our brave boys lost with great honor, 6-5, having gone farther in post-season play than any team has in two decades. Indeed, Glen Nolte, was especially delighted by the efforts put forward by every team member, not only those already mentioned but others such as Ben De Grazia and Tim Covington - in fact, said Glen, everyone played well, everyone hit, everyone supported everyone else. So to those talented young men, their wise mentors and their supportive parents and friends, we offer our congratulations and our pride in a season magnificently played.

Preview of previous attractions...In the next column we'll have a look at the post-season play of the 9-10 All Stars, the TOC teams, the Pony All Stars, and the joyous efforts of the t-batters and the Single and Double A All Stars on the Glorious Fourth. We'll pry softball information out of Nick Garner. We'll also thank our stalwarts (like Mike and Cindy Thatcher and our Pam-of-All-Trades), and perhaps even mention the Vandervort Dynasty and the loyalty of Chuck and Muriel Dawson. Read on, fans of baseball in paradise. The season may be over, but this column lives.

VALLEY VOICE

Fran Farina

To dam or not to dam. That is no longer the question.

At the Water Board meeting on July 17, Cal-Am made it very clear that the New Los Padres dam will be built. There is no choice given the recent decision by the State Water Resources Control Board that Cal-Am does not have the legal right to pump 10,730 acre feet of water that is currently taken each year from the Carmel River basin (roughly 70% of Cal-Am's total production.)

Since the State order requires that any new water source outside the Carmel River basin (except the Seaside groundwater basin) must first replace, on a one-to-one basis, the 10,730 acre feet pumped from the Carmel Valley, there is no other feasible alternative.

The New Los Padres Project would make up for the 10,730 acre feet that Cal-Am is currently pumping without a valid permit and provide improved drought protection, water for planned growth, and year-round flow in most years. No other alternative can achieve these multiple goals at reasonable cost.

The question now is who will build the project?

A positive vote on the New Los Padres Project will enable the Water District to be the project sponsor and will set a limit on the amount of money that can be spent on the project. It does not preclude other financing/ownership mechanisms if they are less costly.

A vote on a District sponsored project is being pursued because information to date indicates that financing by a single public agency would be less costly when compared to other alternatives.

Since April, 1995, the District has been exploring financing options and has asked Cal-Am to provide information on costs if Cal-Am participated in project funding.

The mutual goal of the Water District and Cal-Am is to fund the project in a manner that is less costly to the community.

Some of the factors that affect the overall cost to the community include differing interest rates, the ability to charge connection fees, the period of financing, tax exempt versus tax paying status, land acquisition costs, and construction wage costs.

If the November 7 vote is negative, the Water District could pursue development of the New Los Padres Project with Cal-Am and/or another private firm in a public-private partnership, or pursue the Project with another public agency or agencies under a joint powers agreement. Another option is project construction by Cal-Am or another private entity. None of these alternatives requires a public vote.

Next week we'll look at some of the reasons why your vote remains important. The Water District's Board of Directors is committed to an election on November 7, 1995. A favorable vote will retain local control over peninsula water supply issues.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

It's so unfair. After millions of us finally adjusted to being glued to the remarkable O.J. Simpson case, we're now expected to take interest in the dull House hearings on the military assault at Waco.

Nobody seemed to care, at the time, that the assault was authorized by President Clinton and Attorney General Reno, but we have a presidential election only 15 months away, and little things like something over 80 battle casualties in peacetime suddenly become important.

We also have to allow enough time to assess our losses from President Clinton's generous Mexican bail-out, ($12 billion out of our empty treasury, so far). The House, (also coming up for re-election), is making a show of trying to save the other $8 billion. Nobody, of course, dares to talk about the $78 million per day wasted on our useless C.I.A., (our general intelligence welfare recipient), nor about billions wasted on unwanted and often unusable aircraft and submarines. Why? Aren't these guys supposed to be on America's side?

If it's our system of government, maybe failing, like our idiotic criminal justice system is failing, (the Simpson trial, for example), shouldn't our Great White Fathers Who Art in Washington be spending a little time and effort studying it? Two hundred years ago our general population expected and wanted our system of government to work. Now, the people trying to make it work seem to be outnumbered by the people trying to find loopholes to keep it from working. It comes at a bad time, as our whole planet, (including us), enters a crisis period - unacceptable over-population, hunger, out-of-control crime, et al.

by Dr. James Flippin, Director

The Carmel Valley Property Owners Association Board of Directors strongly endorsed the recommendations made in the lengthy Carmel Valley Road Improvement report. It is a consensus of diverse Valley interest, which include input from developers and environmentalists, road users from motorists to cyclists, equestrians, Village residents, merchants, and ranchers. Meetings were lengthy and spanned many months. Complex topics were thoroughly discussed by all who attended. All participants shared the goal of improving the safety on Carmel Valley Road while retaining the rural ambiance of the Valley.

Recommendations were made in consultation with numerous county agencies, including the Fifth District Supervisor's office, County Counsel, County Assessor, Public Works, Transportation Agency of Monterey County, and the Planning/Building Department. They provided diligent and helpful staff support. Substantial cost savings were achieved when a previous road improvement design was modified to focus on safety improvements, changing recommended capital improvements. Drivers would now settle for a decreased transit time and vehicle capacity in exchange for safe entry and exit to Carmel Valley Road. The traffic "trigger", having now served its purpose, would give way to a limit on development. B-8 zoning, which ties future subdivision to proof of infrastructure, would be imposed. This would assure that future levels of traffic would not increase unless the infrastructure existed to accommodate the increase.

The committee found widespread community belief that 4 laning of Carmel Valley Road would detract from the rural atmosphere. Costs of 4 laning were astronomical and not possible due to lack of funding options. It would take capacity improvements to alleviate the threat of moratorium called for by the traffic "trigger", which would fail to address safety issues.

This is an innovative approach to dealing with a difficult problem, and may spark some controversy. In view of the lack of current funding options, we feel it is the best solution for Carmel Valley. It will be important that Carmel Valley residents support this plan when it comes before the Board of Supervisors. Write or phone Supervisor Karas with your comments, or plan on attending the hearing on August 23.

I didn't learn until June 28 that the Water District had a permit in hand since 1984 for approximately 16,000 acre feet of water which had no conditions attached regarding fish and the Carmel River environment.

It apparently was a closely held secret by those who knew. Three present members of the board have been directors for eight or more years. Many of the staff members have been there for similar periods of time, yet this information never was publicized.

I can understand the reasons why a long term project such as the New Los Padres Dam would benefit some officials with the district, whether it be for retirement benefits, or for any other purpose, but it galls me to learn that we could have constructed a project from which all of the water would be for people.

As I have stated before, the present 24,000 acre foot project will provide only 3,381 acre feet for people, the other 81 percent will be for fish, the Carmel River environment, and the property owners along the river who will receive water for their wells without paying one red cent for their part of the costs of the dam. The 3,381 acre feet will be doled out between 70-140 acre feet per year between eight jurisdictions for new growth and remodels only.

Property owners along the river receiving water free of charge doesn't seem fair, but it is legal because under the law, persons who own property along a river or running stream have "riparian" rights to the water, paramount in California except for one higher right, pueblo rights. Persons who have historic appropriative rights also are exempted from having to pay for water they extract from the river aquifer.

Another matter worthy of note: the district has provided figures to the media stating that it will cost the "average" family residence only $0.85 per unit of water consumed to pay for the dam. The district has also said that the "average" residence consumes only 6 or 6 1/2 units per "month", and will only pay $5 or $6 per month.

This may be correct for those who use only 6 or 6 1/2 units per month, but is misleading, because the water bill comes every two months and some persons may expect to see $5 or $6 on their "2 month" water bills. Furthermore, $0.85 per unit of water consumed will not cover the $9.5 million annual payment, even with

REAL ESTATE Rand Smith

BACHELOR BUDDY WISES UP AND BUYS FIRST HOUSE.

I have a friend named Greg who has always been a little odd.

Not in a bad way. Greg has just always had his own way of doing things. His way wasn't really overtly strange, but it never matched anybody else's.

For example, when we were kids, he'd iron his jeans; he hated sports; he didn't even play guitar or drums.

Greg was never really "in", but he always wanted to be cool.

Some of my other friends dismissed him as a nerd. But I knew he wasn't, because he wasn't that smart. One thing about Greg, he was always laughing. An we could find an "inside" joke anywhere.

Greg bought his first house last month.

Greg's 42. He's a bachelor. He owns a very successful company in Los Angeles in the design trade. Every thread of clothing he wears is a stitch of art. He takes acting lessons. He's rented the same house, on a cliff, hidden in a forest in the heart of L.A. for 14 years.

He spends his life "away", always traveling or on the move. For at least 14 years, he has avoided malls, discount stores, suburbs, regular toothpaste, regular food or any other regular anything that might link him to normal, regular lifestyle. For years he's invested his wealth in antique watches. But early this year, he sold his watches to get the down payment for his new house.

Typical Greg, he called me up around February, (about two weeks after the big L.A. earthquake, as I recall), and asked for my help in buying a house. I told him I could refer him to a great agent. He said okay, but I think his pen ran out of ink when I dictated the agent's number. Greg called me two times a week for more advice. Greg is not a voyeur. He seeks guidance on all matters, and I was to be his chosen mentor for this passage of his life.

It didn't matter that I knew nothing about the L.A. market, except that values must be depressed, (no special insight there!). He would rely on my savvy to get him the best deal. I would tell him the how tos; he would discover the whats and wheres, etc.

Greg's always been fastidious. His purchase was not out of character. Every detail of every microscopic aspect of the process had to be clarified, questioned, defended, challenged, extrapolated and spiritually realized, (often times more than once), before we could approach the next detail, and start again.

In the middle of it all, he decided to take a trip to Europe. Would it have been easy, back in February, to predict that here in early April I would now, finally, be able to say "Congratulations on your new home, Greg?" Nope. In fact knowing what I know about buying a home, about being a first time buyer, about doing business with a friend, about working on a deal outside my area of expertise (in another market, that is), I can hardly believe Greg got his house at all, let alone doing it this year!

"Why did you insist on using me for this purchase, Greg?" I finally had to ask on one of our recent late night marathon calls.

"Because you've been buying property for 15 years, Rand. You know a lot about it. I've seen you make great money at it, too," he told me.

"But Greg, you've also seen me lose money. The house that I bought in 1990 went down nearly 30 percent in value! If you decide to sell anytime in the next five years, chances are you'll lose money, too."

"I won't lose that much," he said. He reminded me that we structured his purchase with only putting five percent down. "Besides, if I didn't buy a home now, when am I ever going to get started?"

Last week we went to his house warming party. It was the first time I'd actually gotten to see this place. We wound up a tiny road in a canyon somewhere in the Hollywood mountains. Definitely fantasy-land, I thought. Painted in three shades of orange, or "sunshine", and grey and green accents, it had cubes and turrets and other geometric shapes where the doors, windows, porch and roof were supposed to be. It was cool. It was on a cliff.

Greg came out to greet us. "Isn't the view great?" he asked. Aren't you afraid of rolling down the mountain in an earthquake, I wondered? We were the first ones there, so we agreed to help him finish setting up. He was running a little late, he said, because he had gone to the Price Club for some of the food, and bought some garden tools, kitchen appliances and folding chairs while he was there. Stuff he really needed, anyway. "Have you ever been to Price Club? It's unbelievable!"

He must have heard himself say that, because neither of us could hold it back any longer. We broke out in hysterics. Greg, the homeowner.

County gets grant for oil recycling

Assemblyman Bruce McPherson announced that the County of Monterey has received a block grant in the amount of $271,718 for used oil recycling. The California Integrated Waste Management Board recently awarded an $8.2 million package of block grants to local governments.

The grants finance recycling and safe disposal of used motor oil and fund the development of oil collection centers and curbside collection centers.

Assemblyman McPherson commented, "This grant is very welcome in Monterey County because the illegal disposal of oil is a significant environmental and public safety threat; one gallon of improperly dumped oil can contaminate one million gallons of water.

The local program, including the County and cities of Carmel, Del Rey Oaks, Gonzales, Greenfield, King City, Salinas, Soledad, Marina, Pacific Grove, Monterey, Sand City and Seaside, will establish three collection points and two collection events for under served portions of the County.

VALLEY FINANCE

Douglas Pease

At breakfast Mr. Greenspan told our Congress the economy is looking pretty good for the rest of this year, and the Dow Jones Industrial Average dropped over a hundred points by lunchtime.

Analysts crowded the financial news network microphones to declare this is the day when the sky starts falling. I reviewed three days of business summaries on Usenet after lunch, and nobody said the sky was going to fall then. It was perfectly clear from quarterly business reports that some companies are doing extremely well...profits up 38% here, up 42% there, up 8 times last year's numbers somewhere else. There was sad news, too: Zenith sold itself to a Korean outfit for $350 million...the last American TV manufacturer. Can you believe it? Smith Corona typewriters bankrupted last week. Remember them? A bank in the Bronx is being sued. Altogether, good news and bad news, but no news warning us the sky is about to fall. So the voices I heard today saying they had claimed all along this would happen, must have been making those claims in a basement in Perth Amboy.

It appears to be business as usual on the domestic front, too. Our trade balances posted record deficits in April and again in May as we race to import foreign oil and foreign goods. Personal credit is at an all time high as consumers take out loans to buy new cars, a few loans to buy new homes, and the rest of us stress our credit cards to the limit. Not exactly a voter groundswell for fiscal balance. Like our government, we are borrowed to the hilt. Like our government, we are not overly concerned about how we're going to pay it back. That's not an issue to trouble us, but it troubles our foreign partners, who are steadily unloading their U.S. dollar equivalent currencies, and sending our dollars back home to us. This makes bond traders very nervous, and stock brokers right behind them. Mr. Greenspan and the traders and the brokers are dealing with the situation every day...very well, it would seem. But on bad days analysts emerge from their basements and appear on TV.

There are other events which are important to us these days. The O.J. Simpson trial. Reenactment before a Congressional committee of the Davidian raid a year ago. Base closings. A fresh look at Whitewater events of sixteen years ago. Abortion rights. Affirmative action. Cutting the NEA budget. Is nicotine a drug or isn't it? Not a whole lot about budget deficits and national debt. Very little about budget and tax reforms. Nothing about universal medical insurance. Nothing about our AIDS and cancer epidemics. In sum, enough good news and bad news to accommodate anyone's perspective on the issues. Just like business.

I take heart from graphs inside the mutual fund sales material I show my clients. For the life of every fund I choose, the graph goes from the lower left corner towards the upper right corner. Not in a straight line, but in stair steps. Some steps are more pronounced than others, like in October 1987. Or maybe July, 1995, when the scores are in. But the graph persists in its upward course. Businesses grow. We endure. The sky won't fall.

in water production, it is not requiring rationing or a building moratorium. What is less clear is what the SWRCB will do after the 2 year, 20% cutback period.

The MPWMD Board heard the first reading of Ordinance 78 which will set the new water user fees if the proposed NLPD is approved. The per unit increase was previously announced as $.85 but at this meeting it was estimated at $.87; although this figure is not yet final. The fee increase would only take effect if the proposed NLPD bond issue is approved in November and the initial user fee increase will be set by August 7 when the bond issue ballot measure is finalized. MPWMD staff recommended that the water user fee annual increase be left open to the discretion of the Board.

Several MPWMD Directors voiced their opinion that they would like to see the annual increases tied to some known index, such as inflation or the Consumer Price Index, so the public could better gauge how much the NLPD would cost them when they vote. Mr. Laredo said that the amount that the fees need to be increased is tied to the MPWMD's need to meet its debt - not any known index. If the NLPD bond issue is approved, factors affecting user fee increases include rainfall, new hookups, and interest rates. Mr. Laredo recommended that increases should be at the discretion of the MPWMD with the understanding that the District can not make a profit on the proposed NLPD; they can only repay their debt.

Director Haddad commented that the proposed NLPD price tag has fluctuated between $100 million and $119 million in the past few months and wanted to know how the Board could tell the voters how much they would be expected to pay. He further said that he could not justify supporting the NLPD as only 3,381 acre feet of the 24,000 acre feet, at a cost of about $80,000 per acre foot including interest, was allocated for people, the rest is for fish and environmental mitigation. Additionally, the 3,381 acre feet will be largely paid for by current residents and allocated to new development and remodels. Director Haddad also asked if and how Carmel River well users with riparian and appropriative rights would be charged as they will receive the benefit of full wells from NLPD water releases. Mr. Laredo said that well users can be charged for water that is not "naturally occurring" but how that determination would be made was unclear.

The next general MPWMD meeting will be held on August 21 at 7:30 at the Monterey City Council Chambers; the meeting is open to the public.

Two local internet companies have merged

Guardian Information Services, a full service Internet provider for the Monterey Peninsula, has merged with Internet Monterey Bay, an Internet destination marketing company. The new company will retain the name of Guardian Information Services. Guardian will utilize the Internet address <http://www.montereybay.com>, formerly the address for Internet Monterey Bay.

Gene Palermo, co-founder of Guardian, states, "We are always looking for partners in the Internet that will bring an aspect to Guardian that will benefit our customers." "Internet Monterey Bay was one of the area's first destination marketers on the Internet, together, we feel we can provide all of our customers better and more valuable service at lower prices."

Tom Biggs, owner of Internet Monterey Bay, says, "I am pleased to be working with Guardian. As one of the innovators on the peninsula in the world of the Internet, I realize the advantages of working with a company that has the considerable resources available to it as it does."

The goal of the new company is to develop the Virtual Village concept. Virtual Village connects local schools, restaurants, shops, local governments, libraries, and other entities to an electronic Internet community. The concept utilizes the Internet as both a marketing vehicle for the destination (accommodations, entertainment, restaurant industry), and as an electronic community for thousands of local Internet users.

The technology allows for businesses to go on-line with product catalogs, virtual storefronts, virtual tours of real estate property and direct e-mail connection to all parties. Guardian also provides full Internet access to the entire World-Wide-Web. Users can e-mail state legislators, browse the Library of Congress, and view an amazing array of informational resources.
